WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 27, 2010 AT 9:33AM

Jill Kelly, like many women, embraces a number of roles in her life; wife (to Hall of Famer Jim Kelly), mother, speaker, Chairwoman and co-founder of the Hunter's Hope Foundation (an organization striving to find a cure for Krabbe Disease—a disease that claimed their son in 2005) and more recently Kelly has found herself in the role of writer. Their family's journey is one that has been marked with incredible highs and devastating lows and this year Jill has decided to share much of her journey and her heart in three books: Prayers for Those Who Grieve (available now), Prayers of Hope for the Brokenhearted (available this fall) and a her much anticipated memoir, Without a Word released in September and hit the New York Times bestseller list at #18.

Jill's books are available at area bookstores, as well as online. More information about her story, her books and upcoming appearance can be found on her web site, www.jillk.org.
